Accessible from Privacy within settings (See Below)

On the installation of Windows10, Microsoft is automatically given access to all your online activities but they claim; not the content.

To switch off all access; go to Settings, and in Settings go to Privacy. Go through all the privacy options and turn them off as a starting point.

Then if you use Skype or similar turn on the main switch for Mic and Camera but turn off all the other options in Mic and camera unless you need them.

If you turn on any other option, only do it because you need them. This will minimise the chance of your activity information being collected.
